Best thing - there's a deep pocket in the bib that safely holds my cell phone and allows easy access.

The big "harvesting pocket" holds my hori hori, pruners and even a trowel. I don't have anything to harvest but I hate fiddling with small specific tool pockets.

★★★★★

Yeah okay this looks a little silly but I would have to say that who cares when it works so very well.

It delivers as promised & takes away the hassle of harvesting vegetables and having a basket or bucket to put them in. Pick it and drop it in the pouch...that easy.

★★★★★

First off... I highly recommend this harvesting apron!

It fits so much produce, has pockets for tools/phone, and has an easy "dumping" system. I had 35 cucumbers and 4 decent sized melons in the bag and did not have any problems carrying it all back to the house.

OUR STORY

A LITTLE ABOUT ROO GARDENING

Our journey began with Tamara, the green-thumbed visionary behind Roo Gardening, who, like many fellow garden enthusiasts, encountered a common challenge — the need for an extra pair of hands during the joyous but often tricky task of harvesting. Frustrated with the juggling act of holding baskets, pruning shears, and the day's bounty, Tamara envisioned a solution that could turn harvesting into a hands-free and delightful experience.

Enter the Roo, a gardening apron ingeniously designed to be your gardening companion. With a unique hands-free shoot, the Roo eliminates the need for awkward stretching of t-shirts or the delicate balancing act of cradling vegetables in your hands. Join us in embracing the Roo Apron experience, where the joy of harvesting is as boundless as the garden itself.
